

Autoglym Animal Testing Policy

Autoglym is committed and obligated to making its products as safe as humanly possible. As a socially responsible company we took the step at the outset of our business that we would never test our formulations on animals of any kind. All our testing, where needed, uses in-vitro techniques and as such causes no harm to any living animal. We stand by the decision we made at the outset of our company and will continue with this policy into the future. Our aim stands to design and manufacture safe products, that cause no unnecessary harm.
